Rare note warning

A rare 700-year-old Ming dynasty banknote discovered inside an ancient Chinese sculpture will be on display at Mossgreen in Woollahra next week, before it is auctioned off as part of a $3-$5 million collection. The note was found inside the head of a large 13th-14th century Jin/Yuan dynasty sculpture of a Luohan, "one who has reached Enlightenment". Together, they are worth about $40,000-$60,000. The note carries a warning: "Those who use counterfeit bank notes will beheaded," an inscription on the banknote says.
